88TH YEAR

GETTYSBURG, PA., WEDNESDAY JANUARY 3, 1906

NO. 19

DEATH LIST OF A YEAR

1905 WAS AN AVERAGE YEAR IN DEATHS TO GETTYSBURG

The End of the Year Sees a Number of Deaths From the Great White Plague.

The number of deaths in Gettysburg in a year's time will vary very little, a few more or a few less, so that in the run of the years with the present population the average death list of the borough can be said to contain about fifty names. A slight increase for some cause one year will be offset by a decrease in another healthier year. 1905 was an average year. In 1902 there were 50 deaths in borough, in 1903, 60, in 1904, 40, and in 1905, 50. The average of these four years would be the number of names on death list of the year which has come to an end.

Happy Family Reunion.

On last Tuesday, Dec. 26, Capt. and Mrs. W. J. Martin had the extreme happiness of having about them for the first time in many years, nearly all their sons and daughters, daughters-in-law and grand children, including their beloved pastor, Rev. T. J. Crotty, to the number of seventeen, at 3 p. m., sat down to the enjoyment of a sumptuous repast. Good cheer reigned throughout and continued not only till late at night but every day during the week, so that by frequent story-telling and recalling of childhood incidents and experiences, interspersed with vocal and instrumental musical selections, recitations, toasts and games, the hearts of the old folks were rejuvenated like those of the youthful ones about them, whilst from time to time their exuberant feelings irresistibly displayed themselves in tears of joy and delight.

Besides the above mentioned persons there were present Mrs. Laura Roddy and her two sons Martin and Joe, of Philadelphia, Vincent W. and wife of Harrisburg, Mrs. Emily Ramer and four daughters, Mary, Genevieve, Zita and Grace of Gettysburg, Rev. Father W. E. Martin of Elizabethtown, A. S. Martin and wife of Burlington, Ia., and J. Leo Martin of Providence, R. I.

All that tended to mar this truly enjoyable occasion was the unavoidable absence of three of the children, Allan J. of Cincinnati, O., Lewis J. of Memphis, Tenn., and R. Estelle or Sister M. Elizabeth of Norfolk, Va. That their dear parents may live to enjoy many more such meetings is the sincere wish of not only their children, but also of their host of friends and acquaintances.

We acknowledge the receipt of a copy of the new 1906 Kado Almanac and 200 Year Calendar. Its most important feature is without doubt the very simply constructed 200 Year Calendar, whereby with absolute accuracy you can tell the day of the week on which any event occurred during one hundred years of the past, or on which any date will occur during the next hundred years, thus giving the day of the week on which any birth, death, marriage or any important event may have happened.

Messrs. E. C. DeWitt & Co., of Chicago, Ill., are sole owners and publishers of the Kado Almanac and 200 Year Calendar, and will be pleased to mail a copy of this booklet to any one enclosing a two-cent stamp with a request for same, provided this paper is mentioned.

Rheumatism

Is one of the constitutional diseases. It manifests itself in local aches and pains,—inflamed joints and stiff muscles,—but it cannot be cured by local applications. It requires constitutional treatment acting through the blood, and the best is a course of the great medicine Hood's Sarsaparilla which has permanently cured thousands of cases.

For testimonials of remarkable cures send for Book on Rheumatism, No. 7, C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass.

Victim of Railroad Wreck

East Berlin, Jan. 2. Two men were killed on the Pennsylvania Railroad by a rear end collision near Lancaster city on last Saturday morning. The victims were conductor Joseph Waddell of Harrisburg and fireman Robert J. Miller, son of Samuel Miller of Reading township. It is supposed the two men were in the caboose eating their dinner. They were taken from the wreck to St. Joseph's Hospital, dying shortly after reaching hospital. Mr. Miller was a nice, quiet, industrious young man as there was one in Reading township, his age being 22 years, 1 month and 16 days. He was married on Oct. 12 last and expected to go to housekeeping in the spring at Harrisburg. Undertaker A. E. Trimmer of this place went to York and brought the body to the home of the uncle of Mrs. Miller, Calvin F. Fohl and funeral will be held tomorrow at 1 o'clock P. M., interment in the Union Cemetery. Rev. P. M. Spangler and H. B. Clare, conducting the services.

On last Thursday at 3 o'clock P. M. at the home of the bride in this place Prof. Aaron Jacobs and Maisee M. Groff were married by Rev. R. H. Chare. Prof. Jacobs is principal of the High School at Altoona. Prof. & Mrs. Jacobs left here the same afternoon going to York and then to Altoona, where a furnished home is awaiting their arrival.

Miss E. Mae Miller, daughter of J. S. Miller of town is home from Andover Ohio, to take in the holidays. She is principal of High School at Andover.

Our ice men are afraid they will get no free crop this winter.

Lewis Kauffman, wife and children of Thomasville were visiting friends in town on Sunday.

College Musical Clubs Traveling.

The Glee, Mandolin and Guitar Clubs of Gettysburg College started on their annual entertainment trip last week. The first entertainment was given in Harrisburg on Thursday night. The clubs contain about twenty-five students. In addition they are accompanied by Prof. W. D. Moyer, their instructor, Mark K. Eckert as pianist and Mr. C. R. Kirk, from Harrisburg as reader.

The musical efforts of the college boys can not be praised too highly. The present musical clubs contain the best material the college has ever had. Their entertainments are fine and as a musical entertainment will compare most favorably with the best that have visited this town in the Y. M. C. A. courses or otherwise.

The clubs will visit Harrisburg, Hummelstown, Middletown, Bloomsburg, Danville, Hazleton, Lykens, Mechanicsburg, Newville, Chambersburg, and will wind up with an entertainment in Brna Chapel on Thursday evening January 11.

Beyond all question the best advertisement that Gettysburg college gets during the year will be from the Musical clubs. Athletics may attract boys, but the refining influence of music must appeal to all parents as one of the best surroundings for their sons. The excellency of the clubs and entertainment given can not help but speak well for the college. The musical organizations deserve the hearty support of the college authorities and Board, in fact should have their financial help whenever needed, not only as the best advertisement of the college, but also for the real good in the clubs.

Oil Stove Explodes.

A coal oil stove in a side room at the cigar factory of W. L. Bushey in McSherrystown on last Wednesday morning caused quite a big excitement. Several boys were playing in the room where the stove was located and suddenly the stove exploded, throwing the burning oil over the wooden ceiling and partitions. The flames reached the second floor. An alarm brought the firemen with hose reel. In a few minutes a stream of water was playing on the fire which was in short order subdued, having done but slight damage to the interior of the factory. The prompt action of the firemen alone saved the factory from destruction by fire.

School Directors.

The annual convention of the School Directors will be held on Thursday and Friday of next week, Jan. 11 and 12, the committee having charge of matter came to the conclusion to have a reorganization of a day and a half, beginning Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and closing on Friday afternoon. MAN WITH BROKEN BACK

Has Had a Romantic and Adventurous Life on Land and Sea.

Quite a romance surrounds the life of Max Geiger, the young German, who last fall fell from an apple tree on farm of B. M. Miller at Hendrix Station, sustaining a fracture of the spinal column. The injured man has hovered between life and death for weeks in the York Hospital. The York "Daily" gives the following interesting story about the man:

"Max Geiger, a young German who since last September has been in the York hospital suffering from a broken spinal column and a severed spinal cord, sustained in a fall, is being remembered during the holiday season with gifts of flowers and fruits from charitable persons who on visits to the hospital became interested in him. "Geiger, who is but 35 years old and without relatives in this country, has told the Rev. Frederick Wagner assistant rector of St. Mary's Roman Catholic church, a life story that has many of the elements of romance in it.

"Geiger's father is a wealthy linen manufacturer in Silicia, in Old Poland. The son was reared on his father's estate in the midst of luxurious and refined environments. He was supplied with an abundance of money to spend upon amusement and pleasure-seeking and was given opportunity to study in the best schools and colleges in Silicia.

"A social lion in the community where his father is the merchant prince young Geiger tired of his life of ease and folly and resolved to change it for a career of adventure. Turning his back upon the home of wealth he surreptitiously departed from Silicia, sought a port on the North Europe coast and shipped as a sailor. A youth of magnificent physique and great endurance, having trained in the gymnasiums of Silicia, he was well adapted to the rough life of the seas.

Not much more than a beardless youth when he left home, he satisfied his ambition for adventure wandering over a great portion of the earth. Just prior to his coming to York county, Geiger was in New Orleans, where he was "shanghaied" upon a trading vessel. He served six months on this vessel and was subjected to much cruel treatment. He came to York county about a year ago and obtained employment on a farm near Hanover. It was there he sustained his terrible injury by falling from a tree while picking apples.

"For the past three years Geiger has not been in communication with his parents in Silicia until he was admitted to the hospital, when the Rev. Father Wagner opened correspondence with them for the unfortunate son.

"While the hospital physicians had little hope for the recovery of Geiger when he was admitted to the hospital, they are now of the opinion that he will live. The complete knitting of the fractured spinal bones has taken place. The injury to the spinal cord will, of course, be permanent, and if the man does live he will be a helpless invalid for the remainder of his days.

It will surprise you—try it. It is the medicine above all others for catarrh and is worth its weight in gold. Ely's Cream Balm does all that is claimed for it. B. W. Sperry, Hartford, Conn.

My son was afflicted with catarrh. He used Ely's Cream Balm and the disagreeable catarrh all left him. J. C. Olmstead, Arcola, Ill.

The Balm does not irritate or cause sneezing. Sold by Druggists at 50c, or mailed by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., New York.

Why Buy McClures?

McClure's Magazine is bought and read in homes not because it is a magazine, but because it is the magazine. Why?

FIRST—THE PRICE. It costs but one dollar a year, or less than ten cents a number, for over thirteen hundred two-column pages of reading matter. This amounts in actual bulk to twenty or twenty-five books costing anywhere from a dollar to two dollars a volume.

SECOND—QUALITY. The reading matter is written by America's leading writers—the best short story writers, the best writers on timely articles, the best writers of important serials, such as Schurz's Reminiscences or Baker's Railroad articles.

THIRD—TIMELINESS. The reading matter in McClure's is not only good; it is not only entertaining, amusing, instructive and inspiring—it is also about the subjects in which you and all Americans are most interested at the time. No subjects in the next twelve months are going to be so important as the question of railroad rates and rebates and the question of life insurance. Both of these questions will be discussed by authorities in an impartial, careful, interesting way.

FOURTH—ITS CHARACTER. McClure's Magazine is not edited for children, but at the same time, there is never a line in it that any young girl might not read. Its advertising pages are as clean as its editorial pages.

McClure's Magazine

in your home is intended to work only for good. Send $1.00 to-day for one year's subscription, or leave an order at your book-store. November and December free with new subscriptions for 1906.

S. S. McCURE COMPANY, 47 East 23d Street, NEW YORK

You can earn a good income by taking up the business of securing subscribers for McClure's. It is clean and self-respecting—a publication any man or woman would like to represent. The pay is 25 cents for each $1.00 subscription, in addition to big cash prizes for the best work. Write to-day for full particulars.

QUEER MANX CUSTOMS.

Why Natives Are the Meat Before They Supped the Broth.

Popular to itself is the tale of laws of the Isle of Man. The laws of England have never prevailed there, and some of the Manx enactments are very curious. One of the earliest enjoined "all Scots to avoid the land with the next vessel that goeth into Scotland, upon pain of forfeiture of their goods and bodies to prison." Another enacted that "Irishwomen loitering and not working be commanded forth of this Isle with as much convenient speed as may be" (1561). The first of these laws was the result of a series of raids on the Manx coast by a Galloway rover named MacCulloch. It is said that it was at this period that the Manx custom originated of "eating the meat before they supped the broth," lest they should be deprived of the more substantial part by the appearance at their doors of this Scotchman and his crew. About this time the parish clerks were ordered "to stand at the church doors at the time of service and whip and beat all the dogs." During the seventeenth century a law was made that "whosoever shall be found or detected to pull horse tails shall be punished upon the wooden horse of the parish, thereon to continue two hours, and to be whipped naked from the waist upward."

Manx deacons—the high court judges—are still sworn, as they have been for hundreds of years, by the following curious oath: "By this book and the contents thereof, and by the wonderful works that God hath miraculously wrought in the heaven above and in the earth beneath in six days and seven nights, I do swear that I will, without respect of favor or friendship, loss or gain, consistency or affinity, envy or malice, execute the laws of this Isle justly between party and party as indifferently as the herding back-home doth lie in the midst of the fish. So help me God and the contents of this book."

Every woman, widow or spinster, in the Isle of Man, whether she be owner, remainder or even leecher, enjoys the franchise for the Manx house of keys elections. Every widow enjoys half of her husband's personal estate and has a life interest in his real estate, and she cannot be deprived of this by will. Her written consent must be obtained to all transfers and deeds affecting her husband's property. On the other hand, no married woman can legally own in her own right either money or property in the Isle of Man. She can have no separate estate unless specially provided before marriage.

THE GIRDLE.

It Was a Much Used Arrangement in the Middle Ages.

In the middle ages at the girdle were hung the thousand and one odds and ends needed and utilized in everyday affairs. The scrivener had his ink horn and pen attached to it, the scholar his book or books, the monk his crucifix and rosary, the innkeeper his tallies and everybody his knife. So many and so various were the articles attached to it that the flippant began to poke fun. In an old play there is mention of a merchant who had hanging at his girdle a pouch, a spectacle case, a "penniard," a pen and ink horn and a "handkercher," with many other trinkets besides, which a merry companion seeing said, "It was like a haberdasher's shop of small wares." In another early play a lady says to her maid: "Give me my girdle and see that all the furniture be at it. Look that cigars, pinchers, the penknife, the knife to close letters with, the bodkin, the ear picker and the scale be in the case." Girdles were in some respects like the chateaux of more modern times, but they differed therefrom in being more useful, more comprehensive in regard both to sex and to articles worn, and when completely finished more costly. It is partly for this reason that we find girdles bequeathed as precious heirlooms and as valuable presents to keep the giver's memory green after death. They were not infrequently of great intrinsic value.

A Riot of Ink.

Canon Nicholl used to tell how on one occasion he had visited the famous house of the Thrales in that suburb of London where Dr. Johnson was at home. "Johnson," said the canon in recalling the visit, "had occupied two rooms, and these were left as he last used them. The sight was an extraordinary one, for ink was splashed all over the floor and even on the walls. It was one of the doctor's habits to dip his pen in ink and then shake it."

The Natural Effect.

Father—From my observation of him last night I came to the conclusion that young man of yours was rather wild. Daughter—Of course. It was your constant observation that made him wild. He wanted you to go upstairs and leave us alone.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Donbled.

Mabel—Is she as happy as when she lived with her husband. Molly—Twice as happy. He used to allow her only $9 a week, and now he has to pay her $18 a week alimony.—Kansas City Independent.

You can get a very good idea of "natural selection" in its practical workings by viewing a celery glass after it has been once round the table.

THE SECRET OF HIS SUCCESS

(Original)

The dinner party listened to the millionaire, who was their host. They always listened to the millionaire. He was the main man in all that region. He had risen from farmer's boy to president of the lumber trust, and any one who could do that certainly must be worth listening to. Of those present he was the only one who did not have an exalted opinion of his powers. What he had done seemed very easy to him once he was launched in the money-making stream. From his own point of view he could not help making money. One of his guests asked him to tell the story of how he got his start.

"How did I get my start?" he said. "I must first give you a preface. Few of us realize when some ordinary thing happens what an influence it may have on our lives. But this is not remarkable since perhaps but one event in a million is of any especial importance to us. That one in a million in my case was missing a train. If I had caught that train, as I should have done, instead of dawdling through the town looking at everything I passed, I would have been today a farmer."

"But I missed the train. I had come to town to buy a horse. I was the greatest kind of a country gawk. No cabbage patch was greener, though I was strong as an ox and good at a bargain. The only amusement I had ever known was wrestling with the boys after the day's work was over and the stock was fed. But I didn't enjoy that very long, for I was so strong that they gave up trying to throw me."

"Well, when I found I had missed the train I started to walk back to the farm, but, passing along the street, I stopped to gaze at a handbill of a show that was to take place that night. The admission was a quarter, but that didn't stagger me, and I resolved to see the performance. I went to the hall, paid my money and waited an hour before the fun began. When it did, I furnished more merriment to the audience than the performers. I hawled at everything funny and gaped for breath at everything remarkable. It wasn't long before every one was looking at me. Finally some athletes came out on the stage, and one fellow gave performances involving feats of strength. When he had finished he invited any one in the audience to come up and wrestle with him, promising that he would pay $25 if he was downed. The challenge was more than I could stand. I jumped up from my seat and said, 'I'll go on.'"

"There was a roar of laughter from the audience. Some of them tried to stop me, telling me to sit down and not make a fool of myself; that the man on the stage would wipe the floor with me. But there was one old gentleman beside whom I had been sitting who had been stopped, for I had got my mind dead set on throwing the athlete and making the $25, which was more money than I had ever seen in my life. So up I went, and in a few minutes we were locked, arms and legs.

"We furnished amusement for the crowd for ten or fifteen minutes before we came to a crisis. The fellow had more science than I, who pretty nearly equaled him in strength. But I had the advantage of him in never having drunk a drop in my life and not having a pound of superfluous flesh on me. He got winded at last, and, getting a hold on his hip, I threw him. He came down with a thud, and a wild cheer followed my victory."

"I suppose you'll think all this can have very little to do with a start in life, but it has all to do with it. Where is the connecting link? The old gentleman who egged me on. When the show was over he asked me to come with him and, taking me to his hotel, told me he was in the lumber business and that he had a great many men under him who were very hard to control. He said that if he could get a boss who could thrash the most insubordinate of them he might maintain discipline. He offered me a good salary to try it, and I accepted. I never went back to the farm, but the next morning accompanied the old man to his lumber camp."

"The men laughed when they saw a country bumpkin put over them, and within a couple of days they quit. I said to them that I would like to have them put up their best man against me, and if he whipped me I would resign. If I whipped him they were to obey my orders. They accepted the challenge, put up their strongest man, and we set to. I was pretty strong, but the champion was stronger. He had no skill at wrestling, while I had a fair amount of it, besides a slight knowledge of how to use my fists. I landed a blow that staggered him, then rushed in and, catching him by one leg and his waist, threw him so hard that he couldn't get up."

"That settled the matter of my authority, and not a man disputed it. I had a good deal of bulldog energy and made myself valuable in various ways where energy was required. On one occasion when we were behind with a contract I saved the day by standing over the men and getting double work out of them. That soon brought me in closer connection with the firm, and when one of the partners died I was taken in his place. Gradually the other members of the firm, who were older than I, died off, and when we became a stock company I was made president. Ten years later the trust was organized, and, though ours was not the largest company, I was voted for more brute force than the rest, and that gave me my present position. But the secret of my success was missing that train."

HABITS OF HARES.

Making the Toilet Is a Long and Careful Process.

A clever observer writes: "A good many hares find a secure retreat in the sand hills during the daytime and feed on the marshes in the morning and evening. The hour at which most of them leave the marsh varies, but it is any time before 9 o'clock. All the hares, however, do not return, some preferring to lie out all day and make their 'forms' in any standing clumps of grass in the inclosures. I found this out one day while taking shelter among the fir trees from a downpour of rain. As soon as the rain got really heavy I saw first one and then another hare appear, as it were, out of the ground in the middle of the fields and race for the shelter of the sand hills."

"On their return to the hills in the morning many of them take up their station on the sunny side of a fir tree, generally on a slope, and sit there, either among the fir needles or else on the bare ground or sand, without any sort of form apparently. They like a warm, sunny seat, out of the wind, or, in wet weather, sheltered from the rain. Here they sit and sleep, unless disturbed, until an hour or two past midday."

"At some time between 1:30 and 3 o'clock they wake up and begin their toilet, which is a long and very careful process. I have seen them roll in the sand, then get up, shake themselves and finally lick their bodies all over, for the most part directly with their tongues, but those parts of their bodies which they cannot reach so—face, back of head, ears and nape of neck—are dressed by the fore limbs exactly in the same way that a cat does it."

"These toilet operations often take half or three-quarters of an hour. When complete there is a short time of rest, then a long stretch and a yawn, fore legs first, then the hind legs; finally, the whole body is raised into an arch, after which the animal begins to move off for another feed."

"The fat or oil in milk is determined by dissolving it by means of ether, the residue remaining after such test being termed 'solids other than fat.' The average fat or oil found in milk from cows is 3 per cent, and any amount less than 3 per cent indicates almost to a certainty that the milk has been skimmed. If analysis shows a decrease of fat it indicates that the milk has been watered, while if fats and other solids together are low you may infer that the skimmer has done its worst."

An Early Betrothal.
In the early days of California the daughters of the Lugos were sought in marriage by the best families of the state. It was a boast that they were even courted in the cradle, as when the young officer Colonel Ignacio Vallejo, being in San Luis Obispo on the occasion of the birth of a daughter to the Lugos, asked her father for the hand of the day old baby, provided when the time came to fulfill the contract the senorita should be willing. This seemingly absurd betrothal took place. The child grew up to be an intelligent as well as attractive young woman, married her betrothed and became the mother of a very fine man, naming them Mariano Vallejo.

Binding a Bargain.
In the book of 1891, a shoe is mentioned as being bound over to ratify a bargain, and the custom in a sense seems to have been repeated later, for in the year 1892 certain bishops were put into possession of their sees by receiving a glove. These may have been richly jeweled gloves, for such formed part of the episcopal habit, and when some abbots thought it to array themselves in similar hand covering peculiar only to bishops they were forbidden their use by the council.

ANALYZING MILK.

The Process Is Neither Difficult Nor Complicated.

The chemical analysis of milk is not complicated nor difficult. First the chemist weighs a small dish, cup or saucer and carefully notes down the results in ounces, grains and fractions of grains. Next he pours in some milk to be analyzed and again carefully notes down the result. By subtracting the weight of the dish from that of both the weight of the milk is found and recorded. Next the receptacle is placed over a steam jet, which evaporates the water of the milk, leaving only the residue or "solids." Again the dish and its contents are weighed, and by a simple calculation the percentage of solids is ascertained.

The "residue" of the milk has been found to be made up of—
